

Narrator: In a few moments, we will be retiring the flag of the United States of America.

This is a solemn ceremony, and we ask that you all show the proper respect for the flag and those who have fought so hard for it and all it represents.

Please sit and remain quiet until the ceremony is finished.

The following is a direct quotation from the beginning of Title 36, Section 176, of the laws of the United States of America:

No disrespect should be shown the flag of the United States of America.

Furthermore, Paragraph K of Title 36, Section 176 states:

The Flag, when it is in such condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, should be destroyed in a dignified manner, preferably by burning.

We will now retire the flag.

Narrator: Our flag is the symbol of our country. Have you ever stopped to think that the flag really means?

The blue in our flag stands for the valor with which our ancestors fought and died in the many battles that have been fought for our country and all for which it stands.

The white stands for the purity in all of our hearts. It also represents the honor that each of us should show in our everyday lives.

The red stands for all of the men and women who have died in the service of our country, both as members of the armed forces, and as everyday citizens.

Our flag has been carried into every battle into which there have been United States citizens, from the American Revolution to the Civil War, to World War I and World War II, to the Korean Conflict, from Vietnam to Desert Storm and the fight for freedom in the Middle-East.

It has flown over some battles that were never declared, such as Beirut where the Marine barracks were blown up by terrorists. In New York City it flew over ruins from a cowardly attack.

In all of these, we, the American People, have stayed true to the values that the flag represents.

We should always value the sacrifices that have been made for our flag and the country that it represents.

We have an old friend here who has fulfilled his duty to our country. He has become worn and tattered and we are here tonight to retire him with honor.

We shouldn't be sad about the retirement of our friend.

We are not burning him in anger, our friend can continue to serve in our thoughts.

Narrator pauses for a few seconds.

Narrator: Would all the Veterans with us tonite, please come and join our line behind the flag.

Veterans come and stand behind the flag retirement crew.
When all are in place, the narrator continues...

(at this time, Play the John Wayne explanation of Taps)

After all the stripes have been burned, - As the last crew member, with the blue field, places the last section on the fire, the Narrator calls the Scouts assembly to Salute.

Narrator: Scouts! Salute!

And all are silent as Taps is played, Salute Continues until the entire piece burns to ash for the duration of Taps.

Narrator: Tu!

The crew members returns to their places around the campfire.
